141-145 Gough Street is located on a 28' x 87' lot on the west side of Gough Street, between Lily and Oak Streets. Built in 1913, 141-145 Gough Street is a 3-story, wood frame, multiple family building with a commercial use on the first story designed in the Mission Revival style. The rectangular-plan building, clad in stucco on the façade and drop wood siding on secondary elevations, is capped by a flat roof. The primary façade faces east and is 3 bays wide. The first story features an alley entrance with flush wood door and spindle screen at the left end of the elevation. Two storefronts fill the center of the elevation. The left storefront features a curved, divided wood window, and an angled, recessed entrance with a glazed wood door. The left storefront has an angled, glazed wood door and a flush, wood-frame storefront window. The right end of the elevation contains a recessed entrance to the upper story residential units, framed by pilasters and sealed with a metal security gate. The entrance has a wood, glazed door with sidelights and transom. The upper two stories are characterized by squared bay windows in the right and left bays. The bay windows flare slightly at the base, rest on brackets, and end in hipped roofs with exposed, shaped joist ends and red clay tile roofing. The bays have double-hung, wood windows with art glass top sash and painted peaked lintel on the second story and multi-light top sash on the third story. The middle bay has a single double-hung, wood window on the second and third stories. The primary facade terminates in a parapet with balustrades over the end bays. The building appears to be in good condition.
