

INFORMATION UPDATE

ABOUT THE PROJECT

The Central Waterfront of San Francisco continues to grow, accommodating both new housing and neighborhood commercial services, while maintaining many historic industrial marine functions. As more development is realized in the neighborhood, the streets, sidewalks, parks, and other open spaces of the Central Waterfront should receive appropriate improvements that better serve residents and employees.

The Central Waterfront / Dogpatch Public Realm Plan will set the framework for public space improvements in the neighborhood, guiding the investment of impact fees and other sources to streetscapes and parks which tie the area together.
