The S.F. Planning Department invites you to the next in a series of community meetings on the Glen Park Community Plan

As part of our ongoing dialogue, the meeting will involve a discussion of public comments received to date on the draft plan AND possible zoning changes which may affect the use and regulation of properties in the neighborhood commercial area. The Planning Department seeks your input!

The Glen Park Community Plan

The City & County of San Francisco's Planning Department & San Francisco Municipal Transportation Agency (SFMTA) are working with Glen Park's residents and merchants to create The Glen Park Community Plan. The plan is the product of a sustained community process to address issues and opportunities facing the neighborhood. It is NOT a redevelopment plan or a plan proposing major change.

The Glen Park Community Plan strives to achieve the following goals:

1. Protect and strengthen the character of Glen Park's vibrant walkable neighborhood commercial district.
2. Balance the use of streets for pedestrians, bicycles, transit and automobiles in a way that satisfies circulation needs and enhances the livability of Glen Park.
3. Minimize the impacts of past large-scale infrastructure projects on the community.

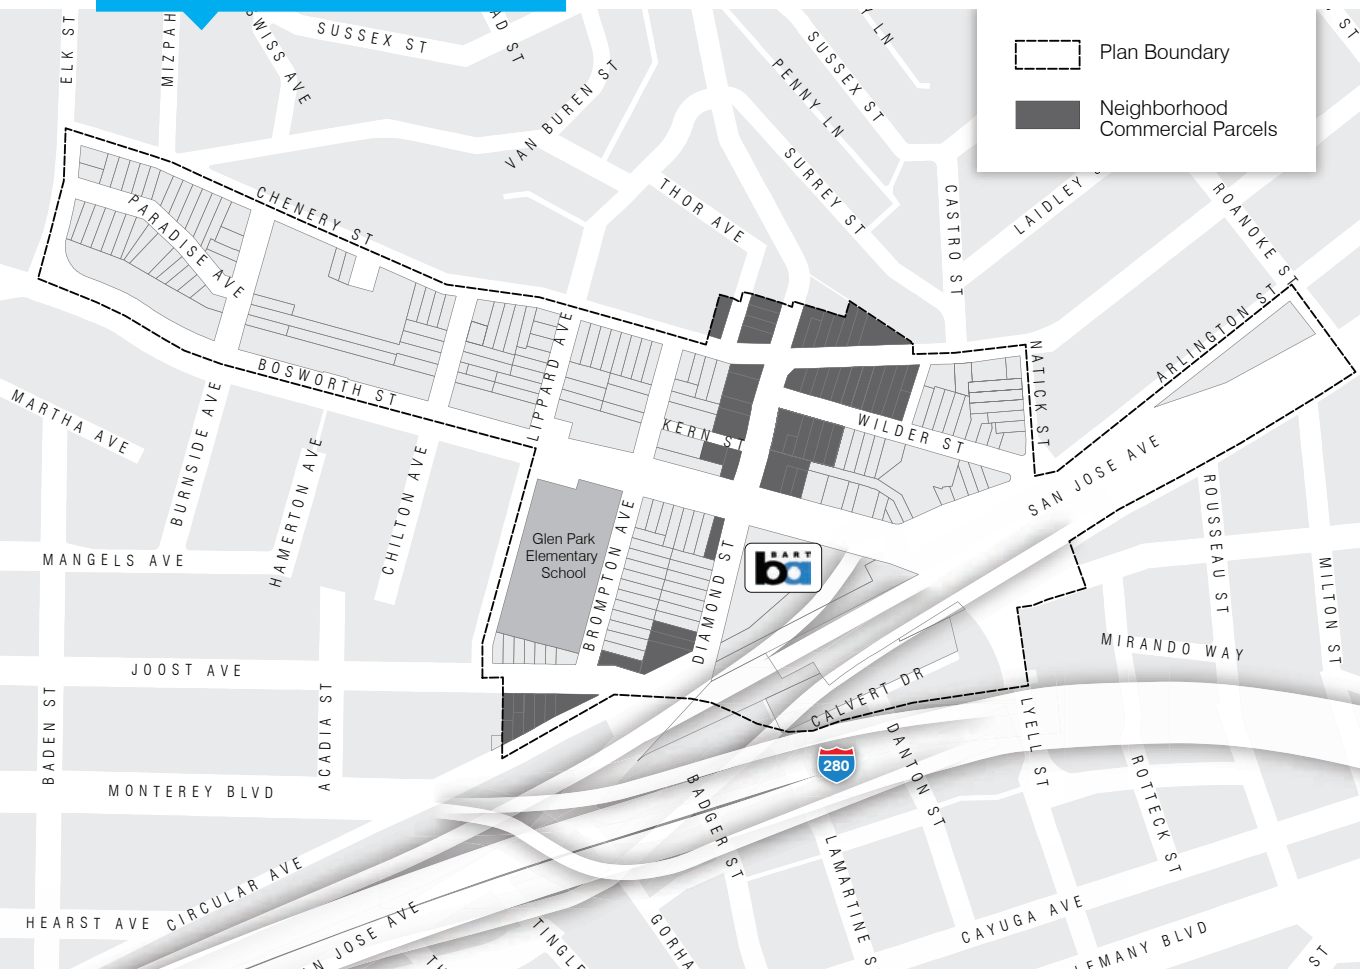

The Plan includes a set of objectives and policies in the areas of Land Use, Transportation and Open Space that will be used to inform community improvements and possible zoning modifications to the neighborhood commercial area. The Plan will become official City policy providing long-term guidance to decision makers and public agencies to ensure future infrastructure projects and land use changes are carried out with sensitivity to the neighborhood.

The planning area includes the neighborhood commercial district, Glen Park BART Station, and nearby streets and open spaces (see Map below for plan boundary).

Background & Timeline

In 2003, a series of planning workshops took place with residents, merchants, and public agencies to create a preliminary community plan for Glen Park. The project was then postponed until additional funding was identified to carry the Plan forward. In 2009, the Planning Department re-initiated the community planning process to revise and update the draft Plan. In September 2010, a new working draft of the Glen Park Community Plan was released. Over the coming months, the Plan will be refined in collaboration with the neighborhood through a series of community meetings. We expect the Plan to be presented to the Planning Commission and Board of Supervisors for adoption in mid-2011.
