

ROLES AND RESPONSIBILITIES

Railyard Alternatives and I-280 Boulevard Citizen Working Group

Thank you for your interest in the Railyard Alternatives and I-280 Boulevard Citizen Working Group. (CWG)

BACKGROUND

San Francisco has committed to significant transit and infrastructure investments in the South of Market, Mission Bay, and Showplace Square/Lower Potrero Hill neighborhoods. The Downtown Rail Extension (DTX), the electrification of Caltrain and High-Speed Rail service are planned around existing infrastructure that includes an elevated freeway, a half-mile long railyard, and street-level commuter rail tracks. This infrastructure was built when the area was primarily an industrial neighborhood, but now presents a number of challenges that potentially divides these densifying neighborhoods, reduces connectivity and exacerbates congestion for public transit, cars, pedestrians and cyclists. The Railyard Alternatives and I-280 Boulevard Feasibility Study (RAB) is a multi-agency program studying transportation and land use alternatives in these rapidly growing areas of the City, led by the San Francisco Planning Department. The RAB will evaluate whether these challenges can be addressed through a comprehensive, regional approach that integrates land use with local and regional transportation and builds a high-quality urban environment.

A Citizen Working Group (CWG) is being established to aid in disseminating information and to gain public input into the City's evaluation of the second phase of the RAB study. More information about the study is available at www.sf-planning.org/rab.

ROLE OF THE WORKING GROUP

The Railyard Alternatives and I-280 Boulevard (RAB) Citizen Working Group (CWG) is the citizen body that is tasked with attending meetings and workshops to better understand the intricacies of the study, provide a public forum, and based on discussions in the working group, aid in informing recommendations for the second phase of the RAB study. Regular meetings will be organized to provide education and orientation about the RAB study, help identify community priorities and concerns, and provide context for recommendations and updates to the study. The public meetings are designed to further promote and disseminate information. Working Group members may wish to be more involved in the two public workshops being held for this phase of the study. If possible, this will be accommodated. While the Working Group will provide a valuable asset to the project as a whole, input is advisory and final decisions, by the study team, and updates to the public rest with the City and County of San Francisco.

MEMBERSHIP

The Working Group is comprised of stakeholders who represent the broad interests of the communities surrounding the Caltrain right-of-way, the Caltrain railyard, and the I-280 right of way.

RESPONSIBILITIES OF THE CITIZEN WORKING GROUP

Throughout the second phase of this study, it is expected that Working Group members will:

- Commit to attend five of the six scheduled meetings, and participate in two public workshops;
- Gain a thorough understanding of the overall project and the findings of the first phase of the study;
- Listen to and comment on presentations that cover the general direction of the study, as well as key deliverables from the study;
- Establish a dialogue with the member's group, organization, or constituency so that these views can be incorporated into broader public input collected for the study;
- Balance the needs of the member's specific interest group, organization or constituency with citywide interests;
- Assist the project team in weighing the pros, cons, and considerations of each possible alternative for future rail alignment, railyard, I-280 Boulevard, and area land use;
- Assist in publicizing any public workshops, opportunities for engagement, and announcements to the San Francisco public; and
- Respectfully listen and empathize with other viewpoints.

CITIZEN WORKING GROUP MEETINGS

Regular attendance by all Working Group members is required to ensure that the public process includes an exchange of ideas among members who represent diverse viewpoints. Meetings will be held from 6:00PM-8:00PM. The dates and topic listed below are subject to change, and the public workshop dates are TBD.

- July 11, 2016 - Working Group Meeting + Walking Tour #1: Review analysis from planning phase one and tour the project area;
- July 26, 2016 - Working Group Meeting #2: Discuss updates provided by the San Francisco Planning Department on the alignments, loops, and railyard options;
- September 14, 2016 (tentative date) –Working Group Meeting #3: Explore I-280 and possible land use scenarios, as well as draft alternatives in preparation for fall public workshop;
- November 15, 2016 (tentative date) – Working Group Meeting #4: Review public workshop feedback and discuss additional work completed by the San Francisco Planning Department;
- January 18, 2017 (tentative date) – Working Group Meeting #5: Review final alternatives prior to second public workshop to be hosted in early 2017.
